In April 2016, ShareChat made it possible to create user-generated content on its platform, allowing its users to share their own posters and creative. For the same reasons, it also introduced an open tag for users that would allow anyone to create their own hashtags depending on the content. [15] In May 2020, ShareChat laid off 101 employees, or a quarter of its employees. [16] Ankush Sachdeva said: We need to focus on our core product and feed recommendation to guide growth levers while scaling back to others. The only way we have to get back to basics is to pick up bets that move the needle to growth. [17] ShareChat has re-hired more than 50 percent of the laid-off workforce due to the success of its newly launched short video platform Moj. It is also expected to hire an additional 150-200 people by March 2021[18] ShareChat Moj ShareChat Moj (launched June 29, 2020) is a short video platform that mimics the capabilities of TikTok, which is banned by the Indian government. Sharechat itself is a competitor to Helo, another social media platform owned by TikTok's parent company ByteDance. However, ShareChat has accused Bytedance of copying its design and ui pixel to the pixel in 2018. Following the direction of the Delhi High Court, Bytedance changed Helo's design[19] ShareChat co-founder and CEO Ankush Sachdeva said in a tweet that the app was coded in 30 hours and was listed at the top of Google's free app list in the Play Store as of July 7, 2020.
